LOCAL UNION EMBARRASSED BY LETTER WRITTEN TO MEMBERS BY BRISTOL TERRACE RESIDENT

Paul Lockwood To Be Disciplined, Says Official of Aircraft Workers' Union, at Meeting of Executive Board To Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon.

Disciplinary action will probably be taken against Paul Lockwood, of Bristol Terrace, by Local 130, United Automobile Workers (CIO), at a meeting of the executive board called for tomorrow afternoon. This is according to a statement made today at union headquarters here by William Booher, financial secretary of the union.

Lockwood, who lives on Murphy Drive in Bristol Terrace, is a first-class mechanic at Fleetwings, Division of Kaiser Cargo, Inc. He was given the job of turning out a sales letter for his union. The result was a turmoil which looked for a moment as if it might have national implications.

Three weeks ago the local received what looked like a pretty hand-boiled letter from international union headquarters.

The letter asked, in effect, what the so-and-so was the matter with Local 130's collection system.

The letter recalled that the international union (by referendum) has imposed an assessment of $1 a member for a postwar reserve fund. The money is to be used for organizational purposes, fighting antilabor legislation, etc., etc.

Why the big bosses in Detroit wanted to know, weren't the members of Local 130 kicking in?

Officers of Local 130 received the letter with considerable shame. It was true that collections were bad. Many of the members didn't seem to understand what the assessment was for and contended their $1 monthly dues ought to be enough to cover all expenses.

A committee was appointed to "sell" the assessment to members. Lockwood was named chairman of the committee. He decided a letter to the membership was in order.

So he wrote that the money is needed to fight antilabor legislation.

"Sad as it may seem," Lockwood's letter continued, "in this great democracy of ours, Congressmen must be 'greased'—that is, wined and dined and bribed for their votes; and they can be very effectively. This greasing process costs a tidy sum with every session of Congress. This is what your dollar goes for."

The rest of the letter recited benefits from the union in the way of wages and said a good word about the company's co-operation.

Lockwood took the letter to the local's office at 120 Radcliffe street, Bristol, on July 6th. No officers were present. He picked up the rubber signature stamp of William Booher, financial secretary, and "signed" the letter, according to union officials.

The stenographer mimeographed 3000 copies, which were given to shop stewards to distribute.

Hundreds of copies were handed out before stewards and officers actually read the letter.

Then the help-grease-Congressmen paragraph hit them in the eye.

The officers tried to get back the letters and destroy them.

That started fireworks.

Booher said at first the letter was a forgery.

At the office of the Public Relations Department of Fleetwings this morning no comment was forthcoming. The spokesman said

S. Penn Salmon Speaks At Rotary Club Session

S. Penn Salmon, Bensalem Rotarian and Eddington feed mill operator, was the guest speaker before the Rotary Club at the Elks' Home yesterday afternoon when he spoke on the subject, "Feed Merchandising to Help Win the War."

"To help win the war feed distributors must aid in educating the poultry raisers and livestock raisers to see that the proper feed is given so that more healthy stock will be produced, so that more poundage will be produced and so that less loss will result because of improper diet," Salmon declared.

He told members that Pennsylvania is first in the United States in the poultry industry and that the county of Bucks ranks fourth in the country. A million and a half dollars annual loss is estimated right in this section, according to the speaker.

Speaking from visual charts Salmon pointed out the symptoms and conditions found in an unhealthy chicken and also spoke on those conditions which tend to produce healthy stock.

The talk was thoroughly enjoyed by members and proved extremely enlightening.

Classification Talk Is Given By Clergyman

WARRINGTON, July 16—With his classification talk representing the clergy, the Rev. Charles F. Freeman, pastor of Salem Reformed Church, addressed members of Warrington Lions Club at Warrington Inn this week.

The Rev. Mr. Freeman, introduced by Howard C. Holbert, compared work of the church to a large business.

"This business has 90,000,000 customers in the United States, and 500,000,000 throughout the world. The church has an investment of $4,000,000,000," continued the clergyman.

Twenty-one million persons, stated the speaker, attend Sunday Schools to find out what the church has for sale, and what it has to offer in the principles of the Founder of the church.

"The church, like all large business enterprises, has its catalogue, and this is the Bible which contains the rules and regulations. The Bible is the greatest seller in the world."

The club men were informed that the church also makes an attempt to sell its by-products, and two of them are the Golden Rule and peace. The latter, it was said, is not selling very readily now because of the war. Temporarily, said Rev. Freeman, it has been placed on the shelf, but hopes are being entertained that it will soon find a ready sale on the market.

Bringing his talk to a close, Rev. Freeman said: "If our goods are properly used according to directions, they will never fail."

Dear Parents:

Met another Bristol fellow here! It happened in a most unusual way. Here's how—This Saturday I got a 12-hour pass to be away from quarters, so I went for a walk around town. Naturally there are hundreds of American soldiers around—many of them strangers—so when one of them called out "Say, Sergeant, where can I find a theatre where they show American movies?" I didn't think twice about it, but turned and was going to give him the necessary information, when I immediately recognized him. I was wearing sun-glasses at the time, so he couldn't tell who I was. I stood there just looking at him for a minute. It was such a surprise. Then finally I yelled "For gosh sakes, don't you know me?" "Yeh! You're Harry Strauss. I never thought I'd see you here." We shook hands and spoke of the good old days in being civilians back in Bristol. I'm sure you know Ernest Pavone.

Washington—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill today delivered an ultimatum to the Italian people that they must capitulate to overwhelming Allied forces or "suffer the consequence."

The dramatic joint-statement called for the "honorable capitulation" of the Italians and asked them to disavow Nazi Germany and their own "fascist and corrupt leaders."

With Allied armies advancing rapidly in Sicily and the invasion of the Italian mainland near, the two great Allied leaders reminded the people of Italy that their skies are dominated

The union leaders were led on and induced by the action of the committee to persuade their followers to accept the 8 cents rather than invoke the strike vote provisions of the railway labor act. Then they had to face the defeat of their good-faith compromise.

The administration is caught between the devil of rising prices, which make for higher costs of food and other essentials, and the sea of the consequences of rising living costs. If the purchasing power of wages declines steadily, demands for wage increases cannot be regarded as unjustified stimulants of inflation.

To control prices at anything like a safe level involves control of prices at all levels, admittedly a difficult undertaking in America. In time, of course, as the costs of the war pile up, the living standard of every person will be lowered, but no one is willing to see that happen to himself if he can find a way to prevent it.

OVERCONFIDENCE

As between defeatism and overconfidence there isn't much choice. One is about as bad as the other. And it is overconfidence to which Lieut. Gen. Breton Somervell, commanding general of the Army Service Forces, attributes the decline of war production for the month of May.

Perhaps the miracles which American industrial genius has performed have been proclaimed too widely and too loudly. Perhaps recent victories have come too easily. At any rate, the drop in production of war material in May was so serious that it is reported that it has been necessary to send equipment used in training soldiers at home to the armed forces abroad. Confronted with this situation, what workman would participate in a strike, what consumer would complain of a few shortages?

Only overconfidence in the certainty of victory can account for the internal dissensions which have slowed down war production to the danger point.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)

Pastor

Our Heavenly Father, we pray that Thou wouldst guide and direct our thoughts and actions, and create within us a pride in the Gospel like that which enabled Paul to say "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." May our daily lives reflect our joy; may our daily actions demonstrate our faith; may our associations with our fellowman show forth that satisfaction and peace of mind which comes alone to those who rejoice in the Gospel of Christ. In His Name we pray. Amen.
